Tremulous Hands.

When the nervous system is weakened, the body generally shows the symptom of tremulousness in some of its members. The hands shake, the lips twitch at the corners, or the eyelids quiver involuntarily. Such a condition calls for medicine which feeds the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting directly on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, has a wonderful influence in restoring nervous force. It quiets the nerves not by drugging them into stupor but by feeding them into strength. The "Discovery" has restored the health of thousands of those who were utterly hopeless, giving them back natural appetite, physical vigor, healthful sleep and mental strength. There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

David Duggins, Esq., of Jones, Ohio, Co., Kentucky, writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I had nervous or general debility of three years' duration. I took three bottles of the 'Discovery.' During the time I was taking it my sleep became more refreshing and I gained fifteen pounds weight, and also gained strength every day."

Free, on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only, Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, 100 pages. Send 21 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers, or 3 stamps in both binding to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FERRYBOAT CRASH.

The wooden side wheel steamer Northfield, which has been in the service of the New York and Staten Island Ferry Company for the last 38 years, was rammed last night by the steel-hulled propeller Mauch Chunk, used as a ferryboat by the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey.

The collision occurred just off the Staten Island ferry slip, at the foot of Whitehall street. In less than 10 minutes the Northfield, which was crowded with passengers, sank at the outer end of the Spanish Line pier in the East river.

The Mauch Chunk, which was badly jammed, landed the two dozen passengers who were aboard her. Hundreds of passengers of the sunken Northfield were dragged out of the water by persons along shore and the crews of the fleet of river tugs, which promptly responded to the ferryboat's call for help. A few of the Northfield's passengers were hurt in the accident, and it is thought that some lives are lost.

Capt. Daniel Gully, of the tugboat Mutual, who saw the ferryboat crash together, says that immediately after the collision between 25 and 30 of the passengers leaped into the water and that many of these perished. Captain Gully also declares that he is sure over 100 of the Northfield's passengers were drowned. The captain of other tugboats who were on the scene are inclined to think that the disaster was not so serious as to the loss of life. Thus far no dead bodies have been recovered.

The reason for such a difference of opinion as to the extent of the disaster is that the wildest excitement prevailed on the Northfield. The tug Mutual saved in all about 75 persons from the Northfield and the tug Unity and Arrow saved 150 persons. Two policemen of the Old Ship station say they rescued nearly 30 persons between them.

As soon as the crowd which had followed the sinking ferryboat along the river front was able to render any aid it worked with a will and in many instances men sprang into the water to save life. The greatest service was rendered by the tugboats, which, as soon as it was possible, circled around the Northfield and made a bridge to the Spanish Line pier. Men and women clambered over the tugs to the ship.

While the Northfield was well supplied with life-preservers, which were stowed in out-of-the-way places, not more than two dozen of the endangered passengers were able to get them on. This state of affairs was because the life-preservers were not easily obtainable, and the wildest sort of a panic followed when the hundreds of passengers realized their danger. This was only a few minutes before the Northfield sank to the bottom of the river, and then all who had not jumped to the tugs found themselves in the water.

The swiftly running flood tide and the question of which boat had the right of way was the cause of the disaster. Capt. Abraham Johnson was in charge of the Northfield and Capt. E. C. Griffin was in command of the Mauch Chunk. Each lays the blame for the collision on the other.

The Northfield, with a load of passengers estimated at between 800 and 1,200, at 6:01 p. m. started out of the west slip at Whitehall street for St. George, Staten Island. At 6:53 p. m. the Mauch Chunk left the railroad slip at Communipaw for Whitehall street. The latter craft was abreast of the barge office at the Battery when the Northfield came out of the slip.

An exchange of whistles between the boats was followed by the crash. Captain Griffin apparently believed that the Staten Island ferryboat would be halted until he had worked his boat into the upper slip. On the other hand Captain Johnson supposed that he would be allowed to cross the Mauch Chunk's bows.

When the accident appeared inevitable the speed of the Communipaw ferryboat was reduced as much as possible under the circumstances. But, borne along by the swift-running flood tide head on, the Mauch Chunk struck the Northfield on the starboard side at the hood of the forward ladies' cabin on the main deck. The blow was a terrific one and the force of it wrecked the steering gear at the forward end of the Mauch Chunk, tore up about ten feet of the main deck, wrecked the deckhouse on the port side, broke through the deck rail and threw down the stanchions on the forward part of the Central Railroad boat.

As the bumping of ferryboats is not unusual in that harbor, the passengers on the Northfield did not for a minute or so realize the seriousness of the collision. When two firemen ran on deck to save themselves from the inflow of water and the Northfield was being driven at full speed up North river instead of down toward Staten Island the passengers knew that something serious had happened. Then began the panic which continued until the Northfield went down.
